A Fine Monument.

A very handsome monument has been erected to the memory of Mrs. Mary Webb in Mt. Wood cemetery by her three daughters, Mrs. Samuel Letzkus, Mrs. Jennie Harrison and Mrs. Emma Negley. The design is on the order of the Roman sarcophagus and is of Westerly granite, made by P. Reinhalter & Co. It cost $750.

Shot Himself through the Finger.

Carl Laurus, a young German living on the South Side, tested the penetrating power of an American revolver yesterday morning. Laurus and a friend were standing on the river bank, examining a revolver, and Laurus, snapping the trigger, shot himself through the index finger of the left hand. The ball was 32 calibre, and plowed a hole through the finger, just grazing the bone. The wound was dressed at Menckemeller's pharmacy.

Transfers Recorded.

Clerk Hook yesterday admitted to record transfers of real estates follows: March 23, by the Wheeling & Eastern Improvement Company to the Wheeling Bridge and Terminal Railway Company, for $5, part of lot 6 in square 9 of the Joseph Caldwell estate addition.

March 23, by the Wheeling & Eastern Improvement Company to L. H. Stearns, of Boston, for $3, lots in the Sixth ward, to be sold to satisfy an indebtedness to the Terminal company.

"Uncle Hiram" at the Grand.

The Grand was well filled last night to see the comedy drama called "Uncle Hiram," the principal effects being the saw mill and a railroad train crossing the stage at full speed. Both effects are received with the wildest enthusiasm by the audience. One of the acts represents a saw mill in the Vermont mountains and the other scenes are laid in New York city. The company carries every inch of scenery used and claim they can show on any stage, however small. The company comprises several well known artists, while Woodhull is a funny man. They appear again this evening.

Nye and Burbank To-night.

Everybody knows Bill Nye, and almost everybody who can read has heard of A. P. Burbank, and their ability to entertain is well known to the people of Wheeling. This was demonstrated by the unusually large sale of seats at C. A. House's music store yesterday for their engagement at the Opera House this evening. A crowded house is assured. Mr. Nye has been here, and a more charming entertainer never appeared before a Wheeling audience. Mr. Burbank is said to be a worthy participant with him, and doubtless the performance to-night will be as pleasant a success in all respects as that of Nye and Lilley when they were here.

STARTLING THEORY

That Maier is Hiding out to Kill his Murdered Wife's Parents

LEADS TO AN EXHAUSTIVE SEARCH

By the Sheriff and a Posse of Policemen—They find the Man whose Movements Cause the Rumors, but he is not Maier—The Murdered Woman's Funeral.

A startling theory as to the whereabouts of Wilhelm Maier, the wife murderer, was suggested yesterday, and in the absence of any definite information it was regarded as possibly true.

Maier was known to have threatened repeatedly to kill his wife and her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Yoho. There were numerous stories afloat of a man answering Maier's description, who was seen in the vicinity of the Yoho residence up Wheeling creek beyond Triadelphia, and going in the direction. A man was seen in the station at Elm Grove, and when he knew he was observed, he drew his coat over his face.

Sheriff Steenrod and the police force thought these stories ought to be inquired into, especially as the dogs at the Yoho place had kept up a terrible barking at night for several nights.

The sheriff and Deputy Bentz drove out in a buggy, and Officers Carney, Terrill, Lukins and Scally got a wagon and made the trip.

Occasionally definite statements were heard of a man resembling the descriptions of Maier, and the officers felt encouraged. At Haneytown, over the Marshall county line, however, they came up with the man whose course they had traced. His name was Faddis, and he is a late employee of Paige, Carey & Co. His resemblance to Maier is but slight.

OTHER REPORTS.

There was a positive report afloat yesterday that Maier had been caught at Brownsville, Pa., but the police had not heard of such a thing until asked about it by a reporter.

Tom Everts, station agent of the P., W. & Ky. road at Wellsburg, informed the police authorities here yesterday that he saw a man passing that place before daylight Wednesday morning, who so closely answered the description of Maier that he was sure it was he.

Maier bids fair to be as much wanted and as often found as Tascott or the late Fitzsimmons. The descriptions of him sent out suit so many people, as all descriptions must, that there are liable to be new Maiers heard from everyday.

Yesterday a letter was written in German and mailed to Maier's old home, in the town of Aalen, Wirtemberg, Germany, asking that he be arrested if he reappeared there. Steps had already been taken to intercept him if he undertook to sail from New York or Baltimore for Germany.

The Washington, Pa., Journal says: The police of this place were notified, and all freight trains stopping here last night were boarded. On every train were a number of tramps, but none of them with the exception of one arrested about 4 o'clock this morning, answered the description. This one was lodged in the lockup, and later was examined and Charles Hobbs, of Wheeling, who is in town on business, was called in to see if he was the man, he (Hobbs) having known Maier. The suspect was not the man wanted. Several other freight trains which passed through town from the west to-day were searched and from one of these five tramps were taken, but none of them filled the bill. A tramp who was seen to enter a freight car on a siding at the Baltimore & Ohio depot, and who acted in a suspicious manner, was given a chase by the police and attracted a crowd in the vicinity. He proved that he was not the murderer.

MRS. MAIER'S FUNERAL.

Mrs. Maier was buried yesterday afternoon, the services at the house being held at 2 p. m., and Rev. E. H. Dornblaser, of the English Lutheran church, officiating. Pride of Wheeling Council, Daughters of Liberty, attended in a body. The interment was at the Peninsula cemetery. Hundreds of people went to the house to view the remains, and the funeral was largely attended.

Last night a report came that Maier had been seen over in Ohio, back of West Wheeling. The police decided to investigate it, as it seemed to come on pretty good authority. Maier has been known to lie in a hay mow for forty-eight hours without food or drink. With such a record he could very easily remain in the vicinity for a long time without being found.
